

The pickup-threshold determines the amount of energy put back into the system to rearrange it.
The pickup method determines how chips are reorganized given the collectiveness of the pattern.

The probability of pickup determines how quickly the pieces move around to form a pattern.
The number of agents determine how quickly the pieces move around to form a pattern.